“We never never learn at all, we will always have something to improve, to study, to optimize...”

Tell us a little bit about you, how would you define yourself?

I am a dental technician, ceramist, who tries to improve every day in his work. A calm person, lover of the dental aesthetics, the detail in each tooth, its forms, its colors, its optical properties.

What is your profession?

I am head of the ceramics section in the laboratory and I collaborate with several companies and associations conducting courses and conferences.

What would be the peak of your career?

I cannot forget the external projection that I have, but I find my professional peak every time the clinics or any of my clients tell me that a patient goes home happy with our work... With their expectations covered. There is nothing more satisfying to me.

Considering the advances of new technologies and their applications, today is the dental technician more a technician or a craftsman?

I believe that nowadays we have to stay updated, evolve and each time we have to be more technical. We cannot avoid it, but the passion for our profession always develops from the artistic side: the artistic side gives us most of the satisfactions.

How has the sector changed in recent years?

Technology helps us a lot by making things easier and companies give us solutions. Increasingly, they are protagonists

How did you hear about Dynamic Abutment® Solutions?

As soon as I read the first articles about the Dynamic Abutment, I knew that they had come to stay, that they would accompany us for many years.

What is your next project for the future?

Tomorrow morning, I have a Big one or what we, the ceramists, know as a dental arch and I have nothing else in my mind but to make it as natural as possible.

How do you balance family life and work life?

We all know that this profession is very sacrificed, it takes a lot of hours and combining it with family life is difficult. Very complicated. You do everything you can! Anyway, I will be keeping a very close eye to this section in case some colleague has a solution one day.

An advice for all those young people who has just started his professional career:

I think it is a very nice profession that makes us lose track of time sometimes, but we never learn at all, we will always have something to improve, to study, to optimize... It is for long-distance runners.

A hobby that you can not give up:

I love motorcycles and motorcycle racing.
